Wednesday, July 11 -Storytelling Series: "Enos Mills," presented by John Stansfield

Presenter John Stansfield has told Enos Mills' story as a one-man show to many audiences, and last year published a biography on Enos Mills, known as "the father of Rocky Mountain Park." Stansfield's program is presented in first person, in historical costume. Mills was a naturalist, an author, a national park advocate, a public speaker, a photographer, a businessman, a mountaineer and adventurer, a miner and a conservationist. During the Boulder Public Library celebration of its 100th year, the Library Storytelling Series highlights people who were important to Boulder. Featured are programs that shed light on what life was like in 1907 Boulder. The July 11 program is a related family program for all age groups.
